In this table, Day 1 is always the first full day of competition. In recent Games, this has been the first day following the Opening Ceremony but in earlier Games it was the same day as the Opening Ceremony. The days count straight through following the Opening Ceremony, regardless of whether there was a day without competition in the middle of the Games.

[^]The titles “Chef de Mission” and “Assistant Chef de Mission” are used for the first time in 1948. Prior to this, the positions were known as “Team Manager/General Manager” and “Assistant/Associate Manager”. In 1948 there was a blending of the titles. Nelson Hart was Chef de Mission while James Worrall was Assistant General Manager. J.W. Davies was given the title of Assistant Chef de Mission but his duties were confined to the men’s athletics team.

All weight classes have been adjusted for Tokyo 2020, making it difficult to provide historical best-ever results, especially in men's events. This was done in an effort to achieve gender equality. Where it was possible to provide a reasonably close result, we have done that.

* Results from Los Angeles 1984 are marked with * and the next-best result(s) are also provided.
